WHAT IS STUDY ABROAD?

At TRU, study abroad refers to all student mobility opportunities outside of Canada, including student exchanges, field schools, practica, internships and research.

TRU offers a comprehensive student exchange program through our network of international partnerships. Undergraduate students can study for one or two semesters in another country while completing courses towards their TRU degree.

Make your degree stand out and enhance your education. There is no better teacher than life experience, and no better classroom than the world.

“Studying, traveling, and living abroad in Europe for six months allowed me to grasp a global perspective in my education and be open to international employment opportunities. Currently, I am working towards a Master’s in International Security in the Netherlands.

Thanks to TRU, I completed a study abroad, three internships, a hands-on research project, and volunteered for a fantastic humanitarian initiative.

Overall, I was able to enhance my education’s experience, structure, and quality while working towards my Bachelor’s degree. I am thankful for the challenges and achievements at TRU. If I could say one thing: be fearless in the pursuit of all the opportunities this university holds.”

PROGRAM ADVISING & PREPARATION TIPS

Advising & Academics

Meet with your advisor sooner than later. Do your research using the documents and websites shared at the Information Session and know where you would like to go, the courses your plan to take and how you will use them for your degree. The more research you have done the better they can help.

When Selecting Courses

Studying abroad allows for the opportunity to take courses not offered at TRU. It is important to know how you plan to apply these courses back to your program at TRU. Students need to think about the course assessment outcomes when working with a program advisor for courses being attempted while abroad.

Possible TRU Course Assessment Outcomes

Below are three possible outcomes for how an attempted course taken abroad could be assessed on completion of the exchange. Each attempted course will be individually assessed by the Credit Transfer Team. This team will evaluate, in consultation with the Program Advisor, the attempted course credits to be transfer to your official TRU transcript.

Direct Equivalences:

- 80% content match.
- Most difficult to match.

Exemptions:

- Right in the middle.
- Not a match, but similar to a TRU course (50% – 79%).

Unspecified:

- No content match.
- Great for electives or breadth requirements.
- Takes advantage of unique course offerings abroad that are not offered at TRU.

TIPS AND TRICKS

- Must be a full-time student to apply and remain full-time while abroad.
- 3 credit course at TRU equals approximately 39 - 45 contact hours per semester (13 weeks). Detailed Course Outlines from the host university are required.
- Not all institutions use course numbers.
- Flexibility is needed to change course selection upon arrival at another institution.
- If you are having trouble finding courses offered by the host school, the Study Abroad Office may be able to help. If you are planning on studying abroad in the future, save your electives, as this will help make the credit assessment process smoother and provide more options with attempting a course, while abroad.
- Attend a Study Abroad Support Session.

VISA

What is a Visa?

A visa is a permit added to a passport that foreign governments issue to allow a student to temporarily enter, live and study in the host country.

- Each country has different requirements, application forms, processes, and costs involved with obtaining a visa. Be aware that acceptance into the Study Abroad Program does not guarantee a student visa will be granted. The TRU Study Abroad Office is available to provide you with general guidance in completing the visa application.
- To apply for a visa, a student must receive an Official Acceptance Letter from the host university, containing official start and end dates for their semester abroad.

NOTES:

FAQ

When should I study abroad?

Ideally, study abroad should be done during the second or third year of your degree.

Do I need to speak another language?

No. Many programs offered abroad are in English, or are offered in countries that speak English. However, if you are looking for a study abroad experience to help you improve your language skills, there is a place for you no matter what your current language ability.

How hard is it to be accepted?

The process is non-competitive and you have to have a cumulative TRU GPA of 2.5 for Bilateral and 2.75 for ISEP. If your GPA is too low to apply then you can continue to work on raising it and apply at a later date.

Can I afford to study abroad?

Yes. In most cases, studying abroad costs roughly the same or even less than a semester in Kamloops. Each student will receive a Study Abroad Mobility Award and student loans qualify.

Do I need past travel experience?

No. For many students their first time outside of Canada was when they studied abroad.

Can I go in my last semester?

It is not recommended. If planning to participate in convocation, transcripts from the host university may not be sent to TRU in time to be assessed.
